

Assoc. Prof. Gökhan Demirel

Gazi University, Department of Chemistry, Ankara, Turkey

Dr. Demirel was graduated from Gazi University, Department of Chemistry in 2000. He earned his MSc. and PhD degrees at the same department in 2003 and 2006, respectively. After completion of his PhD, he became a postdoctoral researcher at Hacettepe University (2006 – 2007), at University College Cork (2007-2008) and at The Pennsylvania State University (2008-2010). Dr. Demirel is currently an Associate Professor at Gazi University. His research focuses on the fabrication of directional nanostructured films, bio-inspired materials and their applications. Recently, he has received some prestigious awards including TUBA (GEBIP), BAGEP award from Science Academy Association, outstanding success award from FABED and research incentive award from METU Prof. Dr. Mustafa Parlar Foundation. He has published more than 60 papers in international journals.